IIID

International Institute for Information Design

International symposium
Information design problems and solutions

A day of presentations, and discussions, leading into the Information Design Summer School.

Announcing a day of talks and discussions on information design problems and solutions, on Sunday 9 September 2018 in Bath, UK.

The IIID Executive Board will be in Bath for a meeting, just as participants are arriving for the summer school. So we thought it would be a good idea to find a way for all of us to meet.

We've arranged an informal day, with short presentations on such things as:

- a finished project you'd like to share
- a problem you'd like to pose and discuss
- an idea for a dissertation you'd like feedback on
- a connection you'd like to make between information design and another area.

Presentations will be expected to be short and fast-paced, allowing generous time for discussion. We hope that interesting problems will be revealed, which we can return to in the summer school.

Where?
We will meet in The Edge, the University of Bath's arts centre (www.edgearts.org), starting at 10.30, and finishing at around 16.30. The end time may change depending on the programme.

Bath is between London and Bristol, and easily reached by train, car or bus. Nearest airports are London Heathrow and Bristol.

How much?
There is no cost for summer school participants, or IIID board members. Others are welcome to join us, and we ask for a £30 donation towards costs.

How to book?
Please let us know if you plan to come, and whether you'd like to make a presentation.

Email us at info@iiid.net

More information
About the IIID: www.iiid.net
About the summer school: www.simplificationcentre.org.uk